5. General conditions set by the NRR

Kittens shall not be delivered to a new home until they are at least 12 weeks old.

All cats that are sold must be presented to the buyer with vaccination documents and a health certificate from a veterinarian. Cats from registered breeds must also be presented to the buyer with a pedigree from the NRR, or documents showing that a pedigree has been requested from the NRR. The seller is obligated to send a declaration of transfer of ownership, so that the new owner can be entered into the NRR registry.

Cats can be registered either in the main registry (LO) or the control registry (RIEX). Note that the seller has the opportunity of allowing a "restriction of breeding" clause in the pedigree. This is informed the seller through the stated registry in section 1 in this contract.

The buyer confirms that the cat has been examined at the time of transfer and presented with no visual defect. Seller confirms that the buyer has been informed about known genetic faults in this specific cat and in the breed in general. Also that the seller has informed about the possible presented genes in this cat for the faults mentioned. Seller confirms that the buyer has been informed about feeding, care and treatment of the cat. If a cat is sold that shows faults, the seller has a duty to inform the buyer about this. The cat is then transferred on special conditions to be written down below in section 6.

The NRR is subject to the laws of Norway, therefore should disagreements occur in regards to

* the sum of payment agreed upon

* delivery date

* hidden or visible defects in the cat upon delivery -or detected later

* use of the cat in terms of breeding or show

* whether an agreement, written or oral, made between the seller and buyer (consumer) has not been fulfilled as agreed upon, take notice that the NRR board will not take action as long as the matter is regulated by the Norwegian Act on Consumer Sales and The Sale of Goods Act.

These acts regulate all sales and protect the right of the consumer.

A disregard for matters that are not regulated by these acts, but of FIFes laws and regulations, with the addition of the NRR, will be processed by our federation NRR.
